Harsh Research collection of Afro-American History and Literature, 9525 S. Halsted St., Chicago, IL 60628 In Ray Bradbury's 1953 classic, Fahrenheit 451, a "fireman" is a man who burns books "for the good of humanity." Written at the height of the Cold War, the book paints a shockingly dystopian picture of a culture at war with its own printed record, one deeply infused by Bradbury's love of books. In the 17th century, coffee appeared for the first time in Europe outside the Ottoman Empire, and coffeehouses were established, soon becoming increasingly popular. The first coffeehouses appeared in Venice in 1629, due to the traffic between La Serenissima and the Ottomans; the very first one is recorded in 1645. The first coffeehouse in England was set up in Oxford in 1650 by a Jewish man ...
